Group Styles CYOA evaluation

Group Members : Jeremy L, Nicolas A, Shaun A and Myself

Project Title : Farmers Turkey Adventure, Using : Vs Code, Bootstrap, and Github!

Evaluation #1 : Shaun A, is someone I've been collabing/working with since the combine so we already got the chemistry from the jump. Although he joined our group at the last minute, He was still very productive and helped us like how he would start the project. He told us that he excels in image searching so we asked him to manage and give us the best possible graphic pictures that would hit the theme of our project! Underrated addition to our group and made a positive impact right away! He did tell us about Wombo which is a pretty great generator to get pictures that match the project well. That website will now be used for future projects so I'm very thankful to have him in my group.

Evaluation #2: Nicolas A, is also pretty impactful in this group. Although he is not really vocal and the type to pitch in Ideas about the project, he is a great listener and an even better group member because he does what he is asked to do. We are not a bossy type group mates but it shows more how willing he is to contribute as much as possible and make sure the project goes smoothly not just for him but for everyone in the group. A team player forsure but I would just give him advice that he needs to match everyone's critical thinking and not just agree to whatever we say, he is a great coder and I do think that he could give other great ideas/story for the project. He did his job such as putting in the text and helped with the graphics as well! Would work with him again in the future!

Evaluation #3 : Jeremy L,

My brother forreal! Me and this guy clicked right away. Him and I were on the same page from the jump and that's what gets you excited and hopeful that the project would be full of Fun and new learning. Jeremy and I worked on the buttons and selectors mostly, we tried new different things to make sure that our project is not bland and very unique. We share the same interest and are on the same level coding wise, A++ groupmate. A good listener and elevates people around him because he is not selfish, although he would have several pitches/ideas about how we should go about our project he is still willing to hear other people's ideas to make sure that the project is solely a GROUP effort. A cool feature he also added is the text "FadeIn " and a cool panel to switch between the endings so the user won't have to keep playing the game over and over(Even though they should because we made an awesome website/game). We were testing a lot more but do not want to get too overboard and stray away from the real submission requirements. We are a great dynamic duo and would most definitely like to collab/work with him on more projects in the future! I learned a lot of things from him through tags and setting up Links to advance to the next page. I hope that he appreciated my contributions as well because we worked very hard in this project
